116 th Infantry Regiment Collection	A collection of artifacts and uniforms tracing the history of the 116th Infantry Regiment, America's Stonewall Brigade , will soon be on display at 566 Lee Highway in Verona, Virginia. Previously housed in the Staunton National Guard Armory, the exhibits start with displays reflecting the origins of the Regiment in 1741 and proceeding through the Revolutionary War, the Civil War, WWI, WWII, and the current War on Terrorism. In the Post 9-11 era, the security at the Armory

	made it practically impossible for the collection to be viewed, resulting in the 116th Infantry Regiment Foundation, Inc. relocating the valuable collection to a location easily accessible from I-64 and I-81. Long term plans include an entire building dedicated to the 116th history to be located on or near the Frontier Culture Museum property in Staunton, Virginia.
