

ESSENTIAL CIVIL WAR CURRICULUM

Matthew Mason is an associate professor of history at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah, where he has taught since 2003. He is the author of several articles in various journals, mostly on the intersection of slavery and politics in early American history. He is also the author of Slavery and Politics in the Early American Republic (Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, 2006). He is the co-editor, with John Craig Hammond, of Contesting Slavery: The Politics of Bondage and Freedom in the New American Nation (Charlottesville: University of Virginia Press, 2011); and, with Nicholas Mason and Edward Kimber, of The History of the Life and Adventures of Mr. Anderson by (Buffalo NY: Broadview Press, 2009). He lives in Springville, Utah, with his wife and three daughters.